COLUMBUS, Aug. 20.—Fired by last night's severe keynote attack on President Hoover, Ohio Democrats rushed harmoniously through state convention routine today clearing the decks for a booming welcome to Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who is scheduled to launch his mid-west presidential campaign here this afternoon.

Thronged with visiting Democrats from throughout Ohio and neighboring states, decorated with waving flags and bubbling with holiday atmosphere, the state capital was ready with a great ovation for the nominee on his arrival at 11:45 a. m. by special train with Mrs. Roosevelt, National Chairman James A. Farley and Charles Michelson, publicity director.

Care has been taken to brush aside everything that might start a convention controversy and mar Gov. Roosevelt's address at 4 p. m. today before many thousands at the Columbus Red Bird baseball stadium. Early this morning the convention resolutions committee avoided a possible fight over the troublesome question of prohibition.

Under George White the plan has been to keep the outgoing without the decreasing income. Under his predecessor the plan was to increase the income to meet the increasing outgo.

GOVERNOR WHITE
"I favor the continuance of my policy of shifting the emphasis in highway construction from super-highways to a secondary highway system in order that more and more of our people may be taken out of the mud."

"Some means must be found to extend relief to building and loan depositors."

"In all matters where sole responsibility for decision is placed upon the governor, I assume full responsibility for what has been done in my administration."

LOCAL DELEGATES ATTEND SESSIONS

All of Pickaway-co's Democratic delegates and alternates with the exception of Miss Charlotte McEwing, attended the Democratic meeting Friday evening and took an official part in the opening of the convention.

Attending were C. A. Leist, I. F. Snyder, Charles Gerhardt, J. M. Ertter, T. F. Jeffries and Adam Euntz, delegates; Mary G. Morris, Anna Ball, Margaret Criss, Delphine Cromley and Florence Hoffman.

Although less than 100 tickets have been distributed here it is expected a good many more than that from Pickaway-co will attend the meeting at the Red Bird stadium this afternoon. Some persons have obtained tickets from friends on Democratic committees in other counties and others have appealed directly to state Democratic headquarters where they have personal friends.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 20.—Billie Burke is going to "carry on" in Hollywood.
The titian-haired, blue-eyed stage and screen star, widow of Florenz Ziegfeld, "today announced her plans to make California her permanent home and to forsake the stage for a screen career."
"I feel that it is the thing Mr. Ziegfeld would have wanted me to do and my daughter, Patricia, and I are making plans to establish our permanent home in Santa Monica," Miss Burke said.
"I want to complete also insofar as possible the plans which Mr. Ziegfeld had under way at the time of his death, but whether there will be a foilie this year, I cannot say at this time," she said.

EX-CONVICT TALKS

Says He Was Hired to Murder Rich Woman

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20.—Sensation followed sensation today as the prosecution continued to weave what it considered a strong chain of evidence around Frank J. Egan, former public defender of San Francisco, and Albert Tinnin, an ex-convict, on trial for the "insurance plot" murder of Mrs. Jessie Scott Hughes, wealthy widow.

A witness, Gordon C. Douglass, testified he had been threatened over the telephone with death if he took the stand.

SEEN NEAR HOME
Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson declared she saw Egan near Mrs. Hughes' home the night of the brutal killing.

Francis X. Taluise, criminologist declared that strands of hair found in an automobile Verne Doran, ex-convict, admitted he drove over Mrs. Hughes, belonged to the victim.

Hired by Egan
Doran turned state's evidence and testified he and Tinnin had been employed by Egan to murder Mrs. Hughes for her $25,000 insurance money. They knocked her unconscious, ran the automobile over her several times in her garage, then threw her body into the street to make it appear that Mrs. Hughes had been the victim of a hit-run motorist, Doran said.

THE Muhlberg-Twp board of education will meet Monday evening to attempt to thresh out an alteration which threatens to disrupt the school's financial program.

In a meeting with the budget commission last week, the Muhlberg-Twp trustees agreed upon a 2.5 mills levy for the upkeep of the village government. This was $55,000 valuation and amounts to $136, while the persons interested in the school maintain that if the amount was levied upon the whole school district it would amount to $33,000 and thus benefit the school.

OTHER PROBLEMS
Incidental with this problem, the school board will be confronted with another problem at the meeting. T. O. Gilliland of the Circleville Lumber Co. has threatened a lien on the Circleville school building, alleging that $65 is due him for paint which was used to improve the building.

Members of the school board and D. L. Buchanan, superintendent of county schools, will meet with Dr. B. O. Skinner, state director of education, at 10 a. m. Thursday, ask for $1,000 in state aid relief.

Supt. Buchanan also expects to attend the meeting of the school board Monday evening. Members of the board are Pearl Smith, Harry Hill, William Collins, Cecil Reed and Mr. Miller.

WOMEN SET MARK, TO REMAIN IN AIR

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Their hour of actual triumph long since passed the two audacious women flyers who shattered the women's endurance flight record in their "Flying Boudoir." Kept soaring about Curtiss air port today.

Though they set a new record when they passed the former mark of 122 hours, Mrs. Louise McPhetridge Thaden and Mrs. Frances Marsalis, confessing themselves "all in" swept on to set their mark.

At 11 o'clock this morning they had been aloft in their refueling endurance flight for 141 hours.

MRS. POTTS IMPROVES
The condition of Mrs. Adelaide Potts 21, is reported somewhat improved at Berger hospital where she is being treated for a brain concussion.

Funeral services for Milton Potts, 22, her husband, who was fatally injured in the accident in which she was hurt, were held Saturday afternoon at the Rinehart funeral home. The body was taken to Quincy, Ill., for interment.

Foreseeing Possibility of Ohio Becoming Democratic This Fall, Roosevelt Plans Strong Address; To Return At About 9 P. M.

ENROUTE TO COLUMBUS, WITH GOVERNOR ROOSEVELT
—Aug. 20.—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt today will carry his campaign for the presidency into Ohio, long a Republican stronghold but this year claimed by the Democrats.

The Democratic presidential nominee will make his first political speech in Ohio, where he accepted the nomination at Chicago, this afternoon at Columbus. He will speak at the baseball stadium in that city at 4:00 p. m., and local leaders have assured him of an audience of more than 20,000.

SUBJECT GUARDED
While the subject of his address was being jealously guarded, Roosevelt was expected to deal at length with the policies and program enunciated by his rival, President Hoover, in accepting re-nomination by the Republican party. His advisers have indicated that he will offer a "constructive program" for dealing with the economic situation.

In reality this will be Roosevelt's first campaign speech, although he insists, he formally launched his campaign when he flew to Chicago and accepted nomination at the hands of the national convention.

He laid the blame for the business depression on the White House door step in a recent radio address and his advisors expect he will amplify that charge in today's speech.

Four Superintendents and Buchanan Study Uniformity in Junior High Schools

A committee composed of superintendents of four county schools and D. L. Buchanan, superintendent of county schools, met at the latter's office Saturday morning to work out a plan seeking uniformity in junior high schools of the county.

The plan is expected to be beneficial according to Supt. Buchanan, who cites three reasons for the plan. Text books will be uniformed, it will be adapted to the age and learning capacity of the pupils and it will conform to the state department's program.

Other members of the committee include C. A. Higley of Ashville, R. H. Spencer of Walnut-twp., L. F. Smith of Pickaway-twp. and R. H. Barton of Harrison-twp.

Flyer-Wife Plans to Meet Husband Here

BULLETIN

ST. JOHN'S, New Brunswick, Aug. 20.—Capt. James A. Mollison, first to fly from Europe to America alone, left here shortly before noon today for Penfield Ridge, where he landed yesterday planning to hop off this afternoon for Montreal.

Weather conditions were not favorable for flying early this afternoon.

By LON MEGLEY

ST. JOHN, N. B., Aug. 20.—First solo conqueror of the treacherous westward crossing of the Atlantic, Capt. James A. Mollison, young Scottish flyer, had the world at his feet today.

Messages of congratulation stormed him from all over the world. From many cities in the United States and Canada came invitations for visits.

One of these, coming from Montreal, was accepted. Mollison, only a day after arriving at Penfield ridge near here from Ireland, planned to take off at 2:30 p. m. today for the Canadian city in the sleek tiny "flying gasoline tank" in which he fought storms and fog to defeat the ocean.

TO VISIT MON
He will go to Montreal, the honored guest of the Canadian Air pageant, Colonel W. A. Bishop, famous Canadian flying ace of the World War, and J. A. Wilson, controller of civil aviation for Canada.

Earlier plans to fly to New York were changed, and Mollison now believed he would fly there directly from Montreal.

The weather was not so promising, showers and fog making flying conditions poor, but the intrepid Mollison said as he retired at the Admiral Beatty hotel here

Mollison Ranks With Lindbergh

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Capt. James A. Mollison, young Scotsman who made the first unaided solo crossing of the Atlantic, today ranked with Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, Miss Amelia Earhart, and Captain Bert Hinkler, Australian, as the only persons to have flown the Atlantic alone.

Brief details of the four flights follows:

Lindbergh, May 20-21, 1927—New York to Paris, 33 1-2 hours.

Hinkler, November, 1931—Natal, Brazil, to Senegal, Africa—25 hours.

Earhart, May 20, 1932, Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, to Culmore, northern Ireland 14 hours, 56 minutes.

Mollison, Aug. 19, 1932, Portmarnock, Ireland to Penfield Ridge, New Brunswick, 39 hours, 10 minutes.

Last night the weather would not stop him. It was raining as badly then, and he declared that unless it got much worse he would take off for Montreal as planned.

The trip is approximately 400 miles from here, Ireland, and the young Scotsman expected to make it in 3 1/2 or four hours.

He left call for 9:30 a. m., ordered a barber to his room for 9:00 (he brought no razor—to save Continued on Page Three).

STOCK, LAND BANK ASKS FORECLOSURE

William and Daisy Adkins Defendants in Suit For $13,549.79.

The Virginia Joint Stock and Land Bank of Charleston, W. Va., has filed a suit in common pleas court against William C. Adkins, Daisy E. Adkins, his wife, and Joseph A. McCafferty of Monticello, asking $13,549.79, foreclosure of a mortgage and that a receiver be appointed.

The amount claimed comes from a promissory note given by the defendant, William Adkins in September, 1928. At the same time a mortgage was given on a number of acres of land in Monticello to secure payment of the note.

The two other defendants, Mrs. Adkins and Mr. McCafferty, have some interest in the lands the bank claims.

Besides the mortgage and foreclosure, the plaintiff also asks the court to appoint a receiver and grant other equitable relief. James T. Pickering of Lancaster is attorney for the plaintiff.

William and Daisy Adkins Defendants In Suit For $13,549.79.

The Virginia Joint Stock and Land Bank of Charleston, W. Va., has filed a suit in common pleas court against William C. Adkins, Daisy E. Adkins, his wife, and Joseph A. McCafferty of Monroe-twp., asking $13,549.79, foreclosure of a mortgage and that a receiver be appointed.

The amount claimed arises from a promissory note given by the defendant, William Adkins in September, 1928. At the same time a mortgage was given on a number of acres of land in Monroe-twp to secure payment of the note.

The two other defendants, Mrs. Adkins and Mr. McCafferty, have some interest in the lands, the petition states.

Besides the money and foreclosure, the plaintiff also asks the court to appoint a receiver and grant other equitable relief.

James T. Pickering of Lancaster, is attorney for the plaintiff.

Aviation Classic Begins Next Week In Cleveland

National Air Races To Continue For Three Weeks; Features Planned.

CLEVELAND, 20.—The old neck-stretching custom of pointing noses skyward to watch an airplane, long since discarded because aviation has become so matter-of-fact, will be revived in Ohio during the next three weeks.

That's not only a promise but a prediction, coming straight from officials of the National Air Races, who really intend to give Buckeye residents a grand show, free of charge, in air maneuvers to be held in connection with the annual aviation classic here, Aug. 27 to Sept. 5.

EXTENDS OVER NATION
Although centered in this metropolis, the air races this year actually will extend in many events to the four corners and the southern peak of the state. The rest of the country, of course, will be involved in the trans-continental derby races.

In the same fashion that south-bond birds blacken Ohio skies in the fall, airplanes will speckle the heavens throughout the state in these following events:

1.—The Cord cup race in which pilots will race through Ohio toward Cleveland from Washington, D. C., and Los Angeles, Cal. The planes will make stops at Cincinnati and Akron.

2.—The Cincinnati Derby in which outstanding men and women pilots will race to Cincinnati and return in competition for a $3,000 prize.

3.—The Bendix Trophy race from Los Angeles to Cleveland, the feature long-distance speed hop of the races.

4.—The William B. Leeds and the Charles Lanier Lawrence Trophy races from Mineola, L. I., both of which will be held here.

Red Birds Plan Amateur School

The Columbus Baseball Club will open a baseball camp in which all young baseball players between the ages of 17 and 22 in Central Ohio that desire a try-out to determine their qualifications for Minor League baseball will be given opportunity to show their ability.

The training camp opens at the Red Bird Stadium on Tuesday, August 23rd, and will continue for ten days to two weeks.

Tuesday, August 23rd will be Registration Day. Players that desire to try out will present themselves at the Red Bird Stadium on Tuesday, August 23rd with a letter of recommendation from the manager of their team, certifying that "in the opinion of the manager, the player is a prospect and has the necessary qualifications to play minor league baseball in 1933."

TO SELECT TEAMS

Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, and Sunday will be given over to try-outs for outfielders, pitchers, catchers and infielders. Beginning on Monday, August 29th, two teams will be organized, of approximately twenty players each, and games will be played daily during the second week.

At the end of the camp, players will be selected that have the ability to play minor league baseball and the Club will make every effort to secure positions in minor league baseball for such players as are selected for the 1933 season. Players desiring try-outs must furnish, in addition to the letter of recommendation from the manager of the team with which they have been playing, their own uniform, shoes and glove. Playing equipment such as bats and balls, etc., will be furnished at the Stadium.

Players will be under their own expenses during the first week of these try-outs. Expenses in Columbus, not including transportation to or from Columbus, of such players as are retained after the preliminary try-outs during the first week, will be paid by the Club.

HUNTER TO HELP

The training camp will be in charge of Fred Hunter, former assistant manager of the Red Birds and George Munson of the Red Bird organization, and various scouts connected with the St. Louis Cardinals organization will assist at the camp.

BIRDS LOSE AGAIN

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 20.—Continuing their losing ways the Columbus Red Birds went deeper into their slump today in their American association pennant battle, losing a 4 to 2 game to St. Paul yesterday.

Shin Harris, star Apostle pitcher, outthrew Al Grabowski. Three hits off Grabowski in the sixth inning when the Columbus pitcher temporarily lost control cost Columbus the game.

Toledo's Mud Hens dropped a 6 to 4 game at Minneapolis yesterday in another association contest.

OHIO TO GET CREDIT OFFICE

Reconstruction Committee To Provide For Agricultural Loans Here.

COLUMBUS, Aug. 20.—Plans for the setting up here of one of eight regional agricultural credit corporations by the reconstruction finance corporation board were perfected today.

The bank established in Columbus will be for the use of Land Bank District No. 4, comprising Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and Tennessee. A branch office will be located at Louisville, Ky.

PROGRAM OF LOANS

"The immediate work which calls for the creating of these corporations is to inaugurate a program of feeder livestock loans," the reconstruction finance corporation board said in announcing the regional set-ups.

"It is our hope that the corporations will move promptly, energetically and systematically for the benefit of agriculture."

Capitalization of the individual corporations was not disclosed in the board's announcement. Under the law, however, the board has power to establish the corporations with a minimum capitalization of $3,000,000 each.

ROOSEVELT IS SOUGHT

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 20.—The executive department of the state of West Virginia headed by Gov. William G. Conley was stirred today with a pending investigation ordered by the House of Delegates.

Armed directly at Gov. Conley, the resolution of investigation was sponsored by Delegate S. J. Ross, Democrat of Kanawha. Earlier in the session Ross declared from the house that he intended to seek impeachment of the Governor.

DODGERS NOW BEHIND CUBS

Mungo Blanks Reds as Braves Drive Malone Defeating Chi. Cubs.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—There never has been a season like this one for slumps and spurts in the big league races.

We have the once proud Pirates losing sixteen of their last eighteen starts; Brooklyn copping 22 out of 28, passing the Pirates and going into second place in the National league scramble yesterday; the Yankees winning eleven of their last twelve games; the White Sox losing ten straight; and the Giants winning five straight in a last desperate bid for the National league flag.

MUNGO IN FORM

Max Carey, Brooklyn manager, is manipulating his pitchers in highly effective fashion. He sent "Moving Van" Mungo, a green rookie, against Cincinnati yesterday and the youngster blanked the Reds 6 to 0. This put the Dodgers only two games behind the league-leading Cubs, who lost a 6 to 5 decision to the Braves, the latter taking kindly to the offerings of Pat Malone.

Big Chief Elton Hogsett was bad medicine for the Yankees, snapping their winning streak of ten games by taking a 4 to 3 decision over Charley Ruffing. Lazzari's single in the ninth won the nightcap for New York, 4 to 3. Babe Ruth, making a gallant try to outpace Jimmy Fox in the home run derby, smacked his 35th circuit clout.

The Athletics strengthened their hold on second place and gained a full game on the Yankees by twinning Cleveland, 9 to 7 and 3 to 2. Simmons hit "fave for five" in the opener while Tony Ferratis shaded Clint Brown in a pitching duel in the nightcap.

McAFEE TOUGH

The pitching of Firpo Marberry and Bill McAfee was too much for the disorganized White Sox, who bowed to Washington twice, 4 to 3 and 3 to 1.

The Giants knocked Heinie Meine out of the box in the first inning and trounced Pittsburgh, 10 to 4, behind Carl Hubbell's pitching.

A single by Jake Flowers in the eleventh gave the Cardinals a 5 to 4 win over the Phillies.

BLAST ENDANGERS SIX LIVES TODAY

Four Children in House Dynamited at Gloucester in Mine Strike Trouble.

GLOUCESTER, Aug. 20.—Endangering the lives of six persons, four of them small children, a blast of dynamite today ripped the home of Thomas Lewis, alleged coal strike sympathizer.

The dynamite was set off under the front porch of the Lewis home. It exploded with a loud detonation and completely wrecked the porch. Neither Lewis, his wife nor their four small children were injured.

The attack on the Lewis home was believed to be another episode in the prolonged and bitter coal strike in the Hocking Valley.

merely criticizing the Republican administration at Washington, and that every criticism he makes will be followed by a constructive proposal.

OFFERS SOLUTION

"Anyone can criticize, but it's constructive criticism that counts," the Governor told friends recently. Roosevelt has spent his odd moments during the week in between Mayor James J. Walker's removal hearings in working on his Columbus speech. He did not put the final touches on it until shortly before he boarded the train at Albany at midnight.

Because of reports brought to him that the Buckeye state is ready to flop out of the Republican column this year, the Governor decided to make the Columbus speech a major campaign document, according to his advisors.

It will be his first stump speech of the campaign and he intends to make the most of it. Roosevelt is looking forward with keen pleasure to his "Ohio visit" because he will be introduced by his old mining mate, James M. Cox. In 1920 when Cox was the Democratic presidential standard bearer, Roosevelt was the candidate for vice-president.

The Governor is being accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt, two of their children, James Roosevelt, and Mrs. Curtis B. Dali James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic National committee and his campaign manager and Thomas O'Mahoney, Democratic national committeeman of Wyoming. The latter has been in New York this week conferring with Farley and is on his way home.

Roosevelt will start his return trip to Albany about 9 o'clock tonight. He is faced with another week of hearings on the removal charges against Mayor Walker.

RED CROSS UNITS TO MEET SEPT. 21

A regional conference of Red Cross chapters in this area will be held in Chillicothe, Sept. 21, according to word received here Saturday.

Program plans for the conference, which is expected to be an important one, have not yet been completed.

Chapters which will be represented include, Pickaway, Ross, Brown, Madison, Fayette, Pike, Highland, Clinton, Franklin, Adams and Scioto-cos under the supervision of Field Director Fred C. Spaulding and Fairfield, Athens, Meigs, Gallia, Hocking, Vinton, Jackson and Lawrence-cos under Field Director Everett Dixon.

JAMIESON RETIRES

CLEVELAND, Aug. 20.—Charlie Jamieson, veteran outfielder for the Cleveland Indians, who was forced to retire when his face became partially paralyzed, will return to his Paterson, N. J., home within a few days, officials of the Cleveland Indians said today.

Jamieson did not accompany the Indians on their eastern trip this week and is now in Cleveland preparing to leave for New Jersey. Despite his affliction, the baseball veteran continued to act as coach during the last homestay of the Indians.

According to Billy Evans, general manager of the Indians, Jamieson has been placed on the "voluntary retired" list for the rest of the season. He is expected to rejoin the team at the spring training session next year.

Jamieson has been undergoing treatment here for the paralysis, which is believed by physicians to have been caused by infected teeth.

OHIO AUXILIARIES WIN LEGION TROPHY

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 20.—The Ohio Department of the American Legion Auxiliary has won the Blister Trophy, one of the most keenly contested of the Auxiliary's national membership trophies, it was announced today following the close of the national trophy contests.

The trophy is awarded annually to the Auxiliary Department of 10,000 or more members making the largest numerical gain. The Ohio Auxiliary women rolled up a gain of 1,780 members over their 1931 total to win the cup.

CITY FIRST TO PLEDGE MILLIONS

COLUMBUS, Aug. 20.—Columbus today became the first city in the country to pledge the necessary $5,000,000 for a home loan bank required by the federal home loan board.

Combining in the hope of getting immediate aid, the building and loan associations, the life underwriters and the banks and bank associations notified the federal board in Washington of their readiness to subscribe for $5,000,000 worth of home loan stock.

Officials here believe this forward step enhances the city's chances of getting the district home loan bank located here.

GIRL ASKS DIVORCE

T. A. Renick, this city, has filed a divorce action in Ross-co common pleas court for Mary B. Jacobs, 17, through her next friend, J. M. Boecker, against George C. Jacob, whom she married March 1, 1930 in Kentucky.

The young wife charges extreme cruelty and that on July 4, last, her husband struck her with his hands and fists and dragged her around by the hair of her head. She says he carried a pistol and has threatened to shoot her. Besides divorce she seeks alimony and custody of a 19-month-old daughter.

MRS. SMITH DIES

Funeral services for Mrs. Martha Smith, 68, of Salt Creek, Hocking, who died at her home Friday after several years' illness of complications, will be held at the Jimtown church Monday at 2:30 p. m. with Mrs. Martin officiating. Burial will be made in the adjoining cemetery.

Mrs. Smith is survived by her husband, Albert, a son and daughter and several brothers and sisters.

SPARROWS COMMUTE ON RAILROAD TRAIN

WATER VALLEY, Miss.—The crew of a North Mississippi Mobile and Ohio train vouchers for this incident.

The train leaves Starkville at 10 a. m. and makes a round trip to Artesia, Miss., returning in time to make a second trip at 3:30 p. m.

A sparrow built her nest in one of the passenger coaches and has hatched a family of young sparrows. Although the mother bird has never made a trip on the train the crew says she has never failed to be on hand when the train returns to Starkville.

space, he said, and then expected to hurry out to Pennfield to supervise the overhauling of his little push moth plane, a British product.

TO ATTEND LUNCHEON

He was to fly to the community airport here in time to attend a civic luncheon in his honor. Mayor "Jimmy" Britain and the Hon. C. D. Richards, premier of New Brunswick, headed by notables attending. After the luncheon he planned to take off from the airport for Montreal.

Mollison went to bed tired after a formal dinner in his honor, although during the late afternoon he recovered from the almost overwhelming exhaustion which he felt at the end of his trip.

When ordered "immediately to bed" over transatlantic telephone from London by his wife, the former Amy Johnson, Mollison replied:

"Go to bed? Why, I'm going to clean up and start living again." The wife, who knows a thing or two about flying herself, let the matter go at that, promising to sail for New York immediately and arrive in a week to see for herself that Mollison takes care of himself.

TO AGAIN CROSS

Mollison, undaunted by the dangers he encountered in his little ship, planned to fly back to the British Isles "in about a week." He abandoned his plan of completing a round-trip flight within three days.

"I expect an easy time going back, it's an easier crossing. I'm sorry I couldn't have made New York in one hop—if I had had ten more gallons of gasoline I would have and then would have clung to my original project."

Mollison gave the first long detailed account of his spectacular trip to International News Service shortly after his landing, revealing how indomitable courage and a super flying skill had enabled him to pilot his tiny "flying gasoline can" through bad storms and fog.

"If I had had a little more gasoline left, I feel sure I would have hit New York on the nose," he said. "But I went clear off the mark and had to come down very, very tired, and glad to have come this far safely."

ENCOUNTERED FOG

"During the daylight hours I flew close to the surface of the water. On the first part of the flight the weather was favorable from every point of view. But off the American coast I encountered fog and mist and had to rise 6,000 feet to escape it."

"It was this fog which tired me out. It was hard work battling through a mist so blinding that I could not see."

"I cannot be certain where I made my first land-fall, but according to my computations I believe it was about 20 miles north of Harbor Grace, Newfoundland. At that stage of the flight, I thought surely I could make New York."

"I struck a course that I believed was taking me straight down the Newfoundland coast, but the fog stayed with me and I went clear off the course. The next thing I was over Halifax, Nova Scotia."

"I had not planned to fly there, and I circled the city to make certain of my whereabouts. Then once again I set a course that I thought would take me straight to New York."

"Through fog and mist I flew until at last I became so tired I thought I could continue no longer. So I turned back to look for a suitable landing place, and the next thing I knew I was over St. John, New Brunswick."

"The coast nearby was too rocky for a safe landing. I was about done in, and my gasoline supply was becoming depleted. I had to give up all hope of reaching New York on the hop, so I turned back inland to look for a place to come down."

"The way I feel now, I think I shall take a really good rest before I fly back to Ireland. I shall certainly start in a week's time, but at present I feel a little too tired to want to rush the whole thing within four days."

"But when I do go back, it will be in my little plane. And I am sure it will be easier than the westward journey."

CAMP MEETING TO BEGIN IN EARNEST

Council of Churches of Christ in Christian Union Comes To Close.

The largest attended council of the Churches of Christ in Christian Union has just come to a close and we can truly say it has been the most successful in all the years. Friday evening, Rev. Charles Slater was present and brought his Annual Sermon. Today, finished the Council proper. Rev. James Sylvester will preach tonight and then at 7:30 a. m. Sunday there will be a healing service. There will be a great song service from time to time in charge of Brother Charles Slater. At 11:00 a. m. on Sunday, Rev. Paul Rees will preach. Our evangelists are present and have already been introduced and we are expecting that God will nightly use these, His servants, during this camp. At 2:30 p. m. Rev. G. C. Johnson will preach and then at 8:00 p. m. Rev. Paul Rees will bring the message.

Our Camp Meeting proper has broken forth in full blast; missionaries are arriving and we have the largest attendance that we have ever experienced and the power of God permeates the Mount of Praise.

The Camp will continue through Sunday night, August 20th.

Did you ever stop to think

EDSON R. WAITE Shawnee, Okla.

That the world is full of substitutes, but there has never been a substitute for newspaper advertising that was worth considering. Advertising a business does much to build a better business.

Business men who cling tenaciously to the old ways of doing business never get very far in these days of keen competition.

Now-a-days you can find in the advertising columns the names of men business concerns who operate normally and successfully.

The most practical things to do in order to inject life into a near-dead business is to advertise truthfully and persistently.

Some business concerns labor under the delusion that just because they have been in one location for a long while everybody knows them and, therefore, are bound to buy from them out of duty; that class better wake up before it's too late.

Good advertising attracts attention and persistent advertising proves that the goods or service advertised are right.

NAME HALLIDAY AT CINCINNATI

CINCINNATI, Aug. 20.—John (Red) Halliday, Gallipoli, a nine-letter-man, from Ohio Wesleyan university, has been appointed head basketball coach at the University of Cincinnati, according to an announcement today.

Halliday, who graduated from Wesleyan in 1929, became a part-time football coach at Cincinnati the fall of the same year and continued his studies in law at the University Law College from which he graduated last June.

He succeeds Frank (Doc) Rice as basketball mentor, and will continue as Dana King's assistant on the gridiron.

During his three years of competitive sports at Wesleyan Halliday won his nine varsity letters, the greatest number won by any Bishop athlete in recent years. He earned his letters in football, basketball and track.

He was the choice for all-Ohio Conference half back for two years, and won the guard position on the official all-Buckeye mythical team in 1927-28. He also held the Buckeye record for the broad jump for some time.

The Reverend Milton S. Rice says, "I am glad for God's house. It has always been a place to me to which my going has been attendant upon the real satisfaction of life. I am glad to find in it a sure way unto righteousness. I am glad I can find in it a refuge from temptation. I am glad to find a help in time of trouble, an altar for my sinburdened soul, a quickening for my waning hopes, a counsel for my ways of living and a sure strength for the hour of my dying."

Lesson for August 21

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 33.
GOLDEN TEXT—And the Lord spoke unto Moses face to face, as a man speaketh unto his friend.—Exodus 33:11.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Tent of Meeting.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Tent of Meeting.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR

TOPIC—Talking With God.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT

TOPIC—Becoming Aware of God.

I. The Divine Command to Possess the Land (vv. 1-6).

1. The abiding purpose (v. 1).

They were to go up and possess the land despite the fact that the calf-worship had broken the bond between them and their God. God spoke of them as the people whom

Moses brought up out of Egypt, not as his own people. They had not shown any true penitence for their awful sin. Therefore God could not claim them as his own.

2. Divine aid promised (v. 2).

Though their sins made it impossible for God to go with them, still he agreed to help them by sending an angel before them to drive out their enemies.

3. The threatened withdrawal of the divine presence (vv. 3, 5). God said, "I will not go up in the midst of thee, for thou art a stiff-necked people, lest I consume thee in the way." The presence of God in the midst of a sinning and impenitent

people would mean death unto them.

The mercy of God is often strikingly shown by his withdrawal from his people.

4. The effect upon the people

(vv. 4, 6).

a. "When the people heard these evil tidings they mourned." They knew that no angel could make up for the great loss of the personal presence of God. They called it

"evil tidings." Surely no tidings are so evil as those which tell of the withdrawal of the divine presence.

b. They stripped themselves of their ornaments, showing that the articles which indicated gladness

and joy could not be consistently worn when God had departed. We must be stripped of all that pertains to self and carnal pleasures

if we would be clothed with the divine blessing.

II. The Tent of Meeting (vv. 7, 11).

1. It was pitched outside of the camp (v. 7). As a token of the severed fellowship, the symbol of God's dwelling place, the tent of meeting was placed without the camp.

2. Moses in communion with God

(vv. 8-10). Because Moses had not transgressed God's law, he still had fellowship with God. The visible sign to the people that God honored Moses was the descent of the

"cloudy pillar" as Moses entered the tent of meeting.

3. Moses the friend of God (v.

11). This is one of the most beautiful expressions of personal fellowship to be found in all the Bible.

It is not in all literature. Friendship implies mutual confidence and sympathy, a disposition to share each other's secrets.

4. Joshua at home in the Tabernacle (v. 11). Joshua was not involved in the rebellion of the people. Because of his fidelity and in recognition of his unbroken fellowship, he was privileged to abide in the tent.

L. D. Young, Pastor.

Jesus contended that moral values rather than material advantages would be supreme in private lives and in public affairs. "What is wealth? A conscience void of offense, cleansed by frequent prayer, made virile by high resolve and noble deed; the glad outgoing of human love, compassion's springs kept quick and warm; obedience to ideals which brood over our moral journey like a galaxy of stars; the quest for a soul washed white, worthier homes, kinder industry, purer patriotism, a planet spinning in destined righteousness and peace the finding of the Great Companion whose love atones for our mistakes and—herein is wealth, beyond all price, the treasure of the world within." It is spiritual values like these that Jesus would put first.

HELPS IN GOD'S HOUSE

The Reverend Milton S. Rice says, "I am glad for God's house. It has always been a place to me to which my going has been attendant upon the real satisfaction of life. I am glad to find in it a sure way unto righteousness. I am glad I can find in it a refuge from temptation. I am glad to find a help in time of trouble, an altar for my sinburdened soul, a quickening for my waning hopes, a counsel for my ways of living and a sure strength for the hour of my dying."

It is interesting to note how our Presidents have in time become preachers to the nation. There is something in the sense of responsibility that awakens the prophetic spirit in men of high character. President Hoover in his acceptance address closed with a spiritual note, emphasizing the fact that the great need ahead of us was not so much material as it was spiritual. We live by ideals for else we perish. It is not enough that we live moral lives, we must make our contribution by the active effort and by co-operation with our fellowmen. The church is organized Christianity. It promotes the ideal. Go to church tomorrow as an expression of your belief and your willingness to co-operate for high ends. Take a friend.

The Boy Who Got The Job.

Jack and Edward applied for a job which was open for Saturdays and part time during the week—just what a schoolboy could do in connection with his study.

At first sight the owner decided he would take Jack because he looked stronger; but he waited and listened to their answers as he questioned them and then changed his mind and accepted Edward for the job.

"Why did you not take me?" asked Jack. "I am the stronger and have had more experience."

To which the employer replied, "I dislike hearing anyone use slang and especially do I despise swearing. During the last five minutes in my office, you used 15 slang words and nine swear words, while Edward did not use any."

Improved Uniform International SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(© 1922, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for August 21

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 33. GOLDEN TEXT—And the Lord spake unto Moses face to face, as a man speaketh unto his friend.—Exodus 33:11.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Tent of Meeting.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Tent of Meeting.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Talking With God.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Becoming Aware of God.

1. The Divine Command to Possess the Land (vv. 1-6).

1. The abiding purpose (v. 1). They were to go up and possess the land despite the fact that the calf-worship had broken the bond between them and their God. God spoke of them as the people whom Moses brought up out of Egypt, not as his own people. They had not shown any true penitence for their awful sin. Therefore God could not claim them as his own.

2. Divine aid promised (v. 2). Though their sins made it impossible for God to go with them, still he agrees to help them by sending an angel before them to drive out their enemies.

3. The threatened withdrawal of the divine presence (vv. 3, 5). God said, "I will not go up in the midst of thee, for thou art a stiff-necked people, lest I consume thee in the way." The presence of God in the midst of a sinning and impenitent people would mean death unto them. The mercy of God is often strikingly shown by his withdrawal from his people.

4. The effect upon the people (vv. 4, 6).

a. "When the people heard these evil tidings they mourned." They knew that no angel could make up for the great loss of the personal presence of God. They called it "evil tidings." Surely no tidings are so evil as those which tell of the withdrawal of the divine presence.

b. They stripped themselves of their ornaments, showing that the articles which indicated gladness and joy could not be consistently worn when God had departed. We must be stripped of all that pertains to self and carnal pleasures if we would be clothed with the divine blessing.

11. The Tent of Meeting (vv. 7, 11).

1. It was pitched outside of the camp (v. 7). As a token of the severed fellowship, the symbol of God's dwelling place, the tent of meeting was placed without the camp.

2. Moses in communion with God (vv. 8-10). Because Moses had not transgressed God's law, he still had fellowship with God. The visible sign to the people that God honored Moses was the descent of the "cloudy pillar" as Moses entered the tent of meeting.

3. Moses the friend of God (v. 11). This is one of the most beautiful expressions of personal fellowship to be found in all the Bible. If not in all literature. Friendship implies mutual confidence and sympathy, a disposition to share each other's secrets.

4. Joshua at home in the Tabernacle (v. 11). Joshua was not involved in the rebellion of the people. Because of his fidelity and in recognition of his unbroken fellowship, he was privileged to abide in the tent.

III. Moses' Prayer (vv. 12-23).

Moses' mind was somewhat perplexed, therefore he came to the Lord for the solution of his problem. God had said that he would send an angel to carry out his covenant obligation concerning the people in the possession of the land. Moses desired fuller knowledge of this angel so that he might act intelligently with reference to the matter. He asked for three things—

1. Fuller knowledge (vv. 12-14). In order to lead the people, he needed

Red Birds Plan Amateur School

The Columbus Baseball Club will open a baseball camp in which all young baseball players between the ages of 17 and 22 in Central Ohio that desire a try-out to determine their qualifications for Minor League baseball will be given opportunity to show their ability.

The training camp opens at the Red Bird Stadium on Tuesday, August 23rd, and will continue for ten days to two weeks.

Tuesday, August 23rd will be Registration Day. Players that desire to try out will present themselves at the Red Bird Stadium on Tuesday, August 23rd with a letter of recommendation from the manager of their team, certifying that, in the opinion of the manager, the player is a prospect and has the necessary qualifications to play minor league baseball in 1933.

TO SELECT TEAMS

Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, and Sunday will be given over to try-outs for outfielders, pitchers, catchers and infielders. Beginning on Monday, August 29th, two teams will be organized, of approximately twenty players each, and games will be played daily during the second week.

At the end of the camp, players will be selected that have the ability to play minor league baseball and the Club will make every effort to secure positions in minor league baseball for such players as are selected for the 1933 season.

Players desiring try-outs must furnish, in addition to the letter of recommendation from the manager of the team with which they have been playing, their own uniform, shoes and glove. Playing equipment such as balls and bats, etc., will be furnished at the Stadium.

Players will be under their own expenses during the first week of these try-outs. Expenses in Columbus, not including transportation to or from Columbus, of such players as are retained after the preliminary try-outs during the first week, will be paid by the Club.

HUNTER TO HELP

The training camp will be in charge of Fred Hunter, former assistant manager of the Red Birds and George Munson of the Red Bird organization, and various scouts connected with the St. Louis Cardinals organization will assist at the camp.

BIRDS LOSE AGAIN

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 20.—Continuing their losing ways the Columbus Red Birds went deeper into their slump today in their American association pennant battle, losing a 4 to 2 game to St. Paul yesterday.

Slim Harriss, star Apostle pitcher, outthrew Al Grabowski, three hits off Grabowski in the sixth inning when the Columbus pitcher temporarily lost control of the game.

Toledo's Mud Hens dropped a 6 to 4 game at Minneapolis yesterday in another association contest.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 20.—Plans for the setting up here of one of eight regional agricultural credit corporations by the reconstruction finance corporation board were perfected today.

The bank established in Columbus will be for the use of Land Bank District No. 4, comprising Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and Tennessee. A branch office will be located at Louisville, Ky.

PROGRAM OF LOANS

"The immediate work which calls for the creating of these corporations is to inaugurate a program of feeder livestock loans," the reconstruction finance corporation board said in announcing the regional set-ups.

"It is our hope that the corporations will move promptly, energetically and systematically for the benefit of agriculture."

Capitalization of the individual corporations was not disclosed in the board's announcement. Under the law, however, the board has power to establish the corporations with a minimum capitalization of $3,000,000 each.

ROUSEY IS SOUGHT

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 20.—The executive department of the state of West Virginia headed by Gov. William G. Conley was stirred today with a pending investigation ordered by the House of Delegates. Aimed directly at Gov. Conley, the resolution of investigation was sponsored by Delegate S. J. Ross, Democrat of Kanawha-co. Earlier in the session Ross declared from the house that he intended to seek impeachment of the Governor.

DODGERS NOW BEHIND CUBS

Mungo Blanks Reds as Braves Drive Malone Dfeating Chi. Cubs.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—There never has been a season like this one for slumps and spurts in the big league races.

We have the once proud Pirates losing sixteen of their last eighteen starts; Brooklyn copping 22 out of 28, passing the Pirates and going into second place in the National league scramble yesterday; the Yankees winning eleven of their last twelve games; the White Sox losing ten straight; and the Giants winning five straight in a last desperate bid for the National league flag.

MUNGO IN FORM

Max Carey, Brooklyn manager, is manipulating his pitchers in highly effective fashion. He sent "Moving Van" Mungo, a green rookie, against Cincinnati yesterday and the youngster blanked the Reds 6 to 0. This put the Dodgers two games behind the league-leading Cubs, who lost a 6 to 5 decision to the Braves, the latter taking kindly to the offerings of Pat Malone.

Big Chief Elton Hogsett was bad medicine for the Yankees, snapping their winning streak of ten games by taking a 4 to 3 decision over Charley Ruffing. Lazzeri's single in the ninth won the nightcap for New York, 4 to 3. Babe Ruth, making a gallant try to overtake Jimmy Fox in the home run derby, smacked his 35th circuit clout.

The Athletics strengthened their hold on second place and gained a full game on the Yanks by two-timing Cleveland, 9 to 7 and 3 to 2. Al Simmons hit "five for five" in the opener while Tony Feritas shaded Clint Brown in a pitching duel in the nightcap.

McAFEE TOUGH

The pitching of Firpo Marberry and Bill McAfee was too much for the disorganized White Sox, who bowed to Washington twice, 4 to 3 and 3 to 1.

The Giants knocked Heinie Meine out of the box in the first inning and trounced Pittsburgh, 10 to 4, behind Carl Hubbell's pitching.

A single by Jake Flowers in the eleventh gave the Cardinals a 5 to 4 win over the Phillies.

Four Children in House Dynamited at Glouster in Mine Strike Trouble.

GLOUSTER, Aug. 20.—Endangering the lives of six persons, four of them small children, a blast of dynamite today ripped the home of Thomas Lewis, alleged coal strike sympathizer.

The dynamite was set off under the front porch of the Lewis home. It exploded with a loud detonation and completely wrecked the porch. Neither Lewis, his wife nor their four small children were injured.

The attack on the Lewis home was believed to be another episode in the prolonged and bitter coal strike in the Hocking Valley.

merely criticizing the Republican administration at Washington, and that every criticism he makes will be followed by a constructive proposal.

OFFERS SOLUTION

"Anyone can criticize, but it's constructive criticism that counts" the Governor told friends recently. Roosevelt has spent his odd moments during the week in between Mayor James J. Walker's removal hearings, in working on his Columbus speech. He did not put the final touches on it until shortly before he boarded the train at Albany at midnight.

Because of reports brought to him that the Buckeye state is ready to flop out of the Republican column this year, the Governor decided to make the Columbus speech a major campaign document, according to his advisors.

It will be his first stump speech of the campaign and he intends to make the most of it. Roosevelt is looking forward with keen pleasure to his "Ohio visit" because he will be introduced by his old running mate, James M. Cox. In 1920 when Cox was the Democratic presidential standard bearer Roosevelt was the candidate for vice-president.

The Governor is being accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt, two of their children, James Roosevelt, and Mrs. Curtis B. Dall, James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic National committee and his campaign manager and Thomas O'Mahoney, Democratic national committeeman of Wyoming. The latter has been in New York this week conferring with Farley and is on his way home.

Roosevelt will start his return trip to Albany about 9 o'clock tonight. He is faced with another week of hearings on the removal charges against Mayor Walker.

RED CROSS UNITS TO MEET SEPT. 21

A regional conference of Red Cross chapters in this area will be held in Chillicothe, Sept. 21, according to word received here Saturday.

Program plans for the conference, which is expected to be an important one, have not yet been completed.

Chapters which will be represented include, Pickaway, Ross, Brown, Madison, Fayette, Pike, Highland, Clinton, Franklin, Adams and Scioto-co under the supervision of Field Director Fred C. Spaulding and Fairfield, Athens, Meigs, Gallia, Hocking, Vinton, Jackson and Lawrence-co's under Field Director Everett Dixon.

JAMIESON RETIRES

CLEVELAND, Aug. 20.—Charlie Jamieson, veteran outfielder for the Cleveland Indians, who was forced to retire when his face became partially paralyzed, will return to his Patterson, N. J., home within a few days, officials of the Cleveland Indians said today.

Jamieson did not accompany the Indians on their eastern trip this week and is now in Cleveland preparing to leave for New Jersey. Despite his affliction, the baseball veteran continued to act as coach during the last homestay of the Indians.

According to Billy Evans, general manager of the Indians, Jamieson has been placed on the "voluntary retired" list for the rest of the season. He is expected to rejoin the team at the spring training session next year. Jamieson has been undergoing treatment here for the paralysis, which is believed by physicians to have been caused by infected teeth.

OHIO AUXILIARIES WIN LEGION TROPHY

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 20.—The Ohio Department of the American Legion Auxiliary has won the Biester Trophy, one of the most keenly contested of the Auxiliary's national membership trophies, it was announced today following the close of the national trophy contests.

The trophy is awarded annually to the Auxiliary Department with 10,000 or more members making the largest numerical gain. The Ohio Auxiliary women rolled up a gain of 1,780 members over their 1931 total to win the cup.

CITY FIRST TO PLEDGE MILLIONS

COLUMBUS, Aug. 20.—Columbus today became the first city in the country to pledge the necessary $5,000,000 for a home loan bank required by the federal home loan board.

Combining in the hope of getting immediate aid, the building and loan associations, the life underwriters and the banks and bank associations notified the federal board in Washington of their readiness to subscribe for $5,000,000 worth of home loan stock.

Officials here believe this forward step enhances the city's chances of getting the district home loan bank located here.

GIRL ASKS DIVORCE

T. A. Renick, this city, has filed a divorce action in Ross-co common pleas court for Mary B. Jacobs, 17, through her next friend, J. M. Boecher, against George C. Jacob, whom she married March 1, 1930 in Kentucky.

The young wife charges extreme cruelty and that on July 4, last, her husband struck her with his hands and fists and dragged her around by the hair of her head. She says he carries a pistol and has threatened to shoot her. Besides divorce she seeks alimony and custody of a 19-month-old daughter.

MRS. SMITH DIES

Funeral services for Mrs. Martha Smith, 68, of Saltcreek-twp., Hocking-twp., who died at her home Friday after several years illness of complications, will be held at the Jintown church Monday at 2:30 p. m. with Mrs. Martin officiating. Burial will be made in the adjoining cemetery.

Mrs. Smith is survived by her husband, Albert, a son and daughter and several brothers and sisters.

SPARROWS COMMUTE ON RAILROAD TRAIN

WATER VALLEY, Miss.—The crew of a North Mississippi, Mobile and Ohio train vouches for this incident:

The train leaves Starkville at 10 a. m. and makes a round trip to Artesia, Miss., returning in time to make a second trip at 5:30 p. m.

A sparrow built her nest in one of the passenger coaches and has hatched a family of young sparrows. Although the mother bird has never made a trip on the train, the crew says she has never failed to be on hand when the train returns to Starkville.

TO ATTEND LUNCHEON

He was to fly to the community airport here in time to attend a civic luncheon in his honor. Mayor "Jimmy" Brittain and the Hon. C. D. Richards, premier of New Brunswick, headed by notables attending. After the luncheon he planned to take off from the airport for Montreal.

Mollison went to bed tired after a formal dinner in his honor, although during the late afternoon he recovered from the almost overwhelming exhaustion which he felt at the end of his trip.

When ordered "immediately to bed" over transatlantic telephone from London by his wife, the former Army Johnson, Mollison replied:

"Go to bed? Why, I'm going to clean up and start living again." The wife, who knows a thing or two about flying herself, let the matter go at that, promising to sail for New York immediately and arrive in a week to see for herself that Mollison takes care of himself.

Mollison, undaunted by the dangers he encountered in his little ship, planned to fly back to the British Isles "in about a week." He abandoned his plan of completing a round-trip flight within three days.

"I expect an easy time going back, it's an easier crossing. I'm sorry I couldn't have made New York in one hop—if I had had ten more gallons of gasoline I would have and then would have clung to my original project."

Mollison gave the first long detailed account of his spectacular trip to International News Service shortly after his landing, revealing how indomitable courage and a super flying skill had enabled him to pilot his tiny "flying gasoline can" through bad storms and fog.

"If I had had a little more gasoline left, I feel sure I would have hit New York on the nose," he said. "But I went clear off the mark and had to come down very, very tired, and glad to have come this far safely."

ENCOUNTERED FOG

"During the daylight hours I flew close to the surface of the water. On the first part of the flight the weather was favorable from every point of view. But off the American coast I encountered fog and mist and had to rise 6,000 feet to escape it."

"It was this fog which tired me out. It was hard work battling through a mist so blinding that I could not see."

"I cannot be certain where I made my first land-fall, but ac-ording to my computations I believe it was about 20 miles north of Harbor Grace, Newfoundland. At that stage of the flight, I thought surely I could make New York.

"I struck a course that I believed was taking me straight down the Newfoundland coast, but the fog stayed with me and I went clear off the course. The next thing I was over Halifax, Nova Scotia."

"I had not planned to fly there, and I circled the city to make certain of my whereabouts. Then once again I set a course that I thought would take me straight to New York."

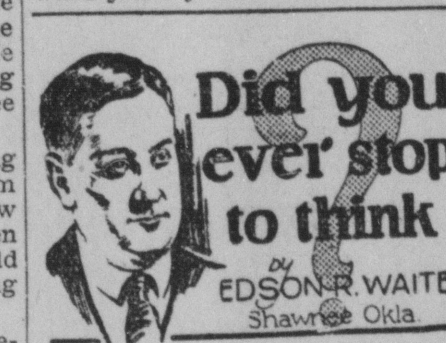

"Through fog and mist I flew until at last I became so tired I thought I could continue no longer. So I turned back to look for a suitable landing place, and the next thing I knew I was over St. John, New Brunswick."

COAST TOO ROCKY

"The coast nearby was too rocky for a safe landing. I was about done in, and my gasoline supply was becoming depleted. I had to give up all hope of reaching New York on the hop, so I turned back inland to look for a place to come down."

"The way I feel now, I think I shall take a really good rest before I fly back to Ireland. I shall certainly start in a week's time, but at present I feel a little too tired to want to rush the whole thing within four days."

"But when I do go back, it will be in my little plane. And I am sure it will be easier than the westward journey."

Did you ever stop to think

EDSON WAITE Shawnee Okla.

That the world is full of substitutes, but there has never been a substitute for newspaper advertising that was worth considering.

Advertising a business does much to build a better business. Business men who cling tenaciously to the old ways of doing business never get very far in these days of keen competition.

Now-a-days you can find in the advertising columns the names of men who are successful in their business. The most practical things to do in order to inject life into a near-dead business is to advertise truthfully and persistently.

Some business concerns labor under the delusion that just because they have been in one location for a long while everybody knows them and, therefore, are bound to buy from them out of duty; that class better wake up before it's too late.

Good advertising attracts attention and persistent advertising proves that the goods or service advertised are right.

Council of Churches of Christ in Christian Union Comes To Close.

The largest attended council of the Churches of Christ in Christian Union has just come to a close and we can truly say it has been the most successful in all the years. Friday evening, Rev. Charles Slater was present and brought his Annual Sermon. Today, finished the Council proper. Rev. James Sylvester will preach tonight and then at 7:30 a. m. Sunday there will be a healing service. There will be a great song service from time to time in charge of Brother Charles Slater. At 11:00 a. m. on Sunday, Rev. Paul Rees will preach. Our evangelists are present and have already been introduced and we are expecting that God will nightly use these, His servants, during this Camp. At 2:30 p. m. Rev. G. C. Johnson will preach and then at 8:00 p. m. Rev. Paul Rees will bring the message.

Our Camp Meeting proper has broken forth in full blast; missionaries are arriving and we have the largest attendance that we have ever experienced and the power of God permeates the Mount of Praise.

The Camp will continue thru Sunday night, August 28th.

The Age of Selection is here

Our times are marked by one vast advantage over all past history—freedom of choice for the average person.

A young man now has a hundred interesting careers to consider. His grandfather had ten. Many paths are open to the scientist, writer, teacher, athlete, business man. When we travel, we often choose between rail and bus and car and plane. Every last thing we buy is one of many offered.

This is the Age of Selection. For advertising keeps us informed. Tells us the special benefits of this, the new features of that. Shows us how to build houses and how to make muffins. Explains why and where and when and how much.

As we read we learn how to discriminate, to recognize worth, to be sure of value received. Before we buy a car or refrigerator or a can of beans, we know what it is and what it offers. Advertising teaches us how to live by this year's rules.

Read the advertisements in this paper. They bring you up to date in this Age of Selection.

School Building Passes

TIME was when the announcement was made that a new school was to be built in any given neighborhood the residents there of experienced a depression of spirits.
The reason was simple enough.
The architecture of schools in years gone by was as distinguished as that of a canning factory. Neighborhoods were anything but improved by such acquisitions.

Happy the change that has come about in school design in later years. With little if any additional cost it has become the practice to engage competent architects with the result that new school buildings are not merely creditable to the community
but actually adornments.

As a consequence congratulations are in order, nowadays, when announcement is made that some neighborhood is to be favored with a new schoolhouse. There has come about a comfortable feeling in the public mind such as structures will enhance the attractiveness of the neighborhood, become points of interest stimulating to community pride and increase the value of adjacent real estate.

This is as true in rural communities as in the city. Consolidated schools are architecturally attractive and pleasingly landscaped, and where one-room schools are being built they are no longer red shanties.

Much is being accomplished in the beautification of old and originally unbeautiful buildings. Tourists are impressed by the attractively painted schoolhouses, with their well-kept grounds, encountered in many rural sections. The greater part of this work is done by teachers and pupils, which means that it will be only a matter of time when the taxpayers will demand and make possible
"little red schoolhouses" that are good to look at and fit to educate children in.

We'll Keep on Wondering

WHY is it that women are so neat and men so sloppy?
Wondering only that bisecton of the male clan which insists on wearing a budon cap to the grocery store, women never appear outside their own doors in one half of the sloppiness, shiftlessness, good-for-nothing array that a lot of good citizens of the other sex are continually seen in. Why is it?

Perhaps there is no particular virtue in being shucked up all the time, and certainly there is nothing so offensive to the hearty person of masculine gender as the well-oiled young man whose handkerchief protrudes from his coat sleeve, whose vest buttons look as if they had been massaged and manicured an hour before, and who can wear patent leather shoes six months without getting a lot of nicks in them.

But just take the average pillar of the community. Think about his collar for a minute. If he wears one of the tortuous stiff white ones, it will be measured or else wilted before noon. The soft collar fare little better, and the fellow who wears blue shirt, with collar attached, just looks as if he is on the way to the stable, no matter what part of town you meet him in.

This is all said in spirit of humility. We realize that one man's at bottom as bad as another and if one looks a little more like his neighbor, it is his wife who really deserves the credit. It is nothing that can be reformed, we suppose, and perhaps the women glory in their superiority, and
and span even if they could.

But a person can't help wondering sometimes—why it is that a woman looks so neat, and her husband so doggone sloppy?

Concerning Holidays

SOME day somebody somewhere will be moved to utter a warning against the unlicensed multiplication of legal holidays.
The more holidays we get, the less inclined people are to take them seriously. A few enthusiastically observed would be better for the object intended than many indifferently celebrated or neglected altogether.

New Year long ago lost its significance for most people. Even the public schools usually do not close for Lincoln's birthday or for Columbus day. Comparatively few observe Thanksgiving as a religious festival. Even Memorial day has become more a touring and outing occasion than one for remembering those who saved the Union.

If legal holidays are to be merely occasions for escaping work they might as well be distributed evenly throughout the year. It would simplify matters, for instance, to have a specified day of every month made a legal holiday, taking its name in case from some historic

CHAPTER FIFTY-TWO

"You'll ruin your voice, you darn fool!" Gwin wired her from Long Island.

"No, you won't," Tony said, "not while you keep your voice forward, and don't force it."

And after that it was easy, so easy that it never again seemed hard.

She was singing in the chorus of Madame Butterfly. In the second act, Rosa de Rocca, who was singing the title role in spite of a serious throat affliction, found herself unable to continue. They hustled Lily Lou into the costume, told her she'd have to go on.

She waited, cold and a little weary, in the wings, while the announcement was made. Heard the obdurate banging of seats, the little indignant murmur of the disappointed, who were leaving . . .

"They're all leaving, down front," somebody said.

That would have unnerved her a year ago. It did not matter so much now. This was her chance, her big opportunity, and the audience was walking out before she started. It would have mattered frightfully, once. But she was used to disappointment now, and there was nobody left but Tony to care. Her mother gone . . . Ken, who was to have come to the end of the world to see her make her debut, gone, God only knew where . . .

Almost from the first she knew that the audience—what was left of it—was with her. She didn't have to throw herself into the part, she was Butterfly, waiting, believing, despairing, giving up at last . . .

"Bravo!" someone shouted from the gallery.

"Success! Success!" Tony was on the stage, embracing her almost before the curtain fell.

Tina brought Lily Lou the morning papers, while she was still in bed. She turned to the drama pages, saw the headlines . . . Turned away, a little sick with the excitement. After five years . . . after she had almost given up . . . Success . . .

Young Robin, glowing and happy,
after his early morning play in the oak, opened the door a crack, came running to the bed to throw his arms around her and ask to play Indian—"just a minute, only a minute. I promised Tina I wouldn't play, only a minute with you!"

She pressed his cold cheek against hers, hugged him until he squeezed . . .

"Le's play, mother-er—Le's play!"
So she submitted to being scalped, and they hunted for scouts under the pillow. After that Tina led him away, and she turned once more to her papers . . .

But she knew what was in them.
She'd known ever since last night,
most from the moment that she made her first entrance she knew.
"Lily Lou Lansing rises from the sight clutches, to sing the second act of Butterfly . . . a romantic figure, young, slim and beautiful, possessed of a superb soprano voice that soars effortlessly into the higher reaches . . ."

The telephone began to ring. Reporters came. Strange people to congratulate her. Strange agents with contracts . . .

"A wonderful piece of luck," Tony said. "Dramatic, do you see?
in the midst of a dull season, the new prima donna—out of the nightclubs! Of course you're no more out of the night clubs than I'm out of the Royal Navy, but it makes no anniversary occurring within the month . . .

The tendency, of course, is always to multiply, never to decrease, the number of holidays.
We may ignore a holiday, but we never legislate it out of existence;
and it is small honor to a hero or an historic event for the public generally either to neglect the holiday set aside in commemoration or to turn the celebration into a channels foreign to its original purpose . . .

Who will be first seriously to suggest a revision of holiday schedules in the interests of a harassed and confused mankind . . .

The pocketbook seems to be the great American novel.

Executive. One who entertains callers while lieutenants do the work . . .

One half the world doesn't know how the other half manages to buy gasoline . . .

FIND SUBMARINE VALLEY

WASHINGTON—A new submarine valley, just north of Monterey Bay on the Pacific Coast has been reported by officers of the Coast and Geodetic Survey.
Preliminary reports show it to be about 3 miles long and 1 mile wide with a depth of 1,200 feet or 200 fathoms making it valuable as a submarine landmark or helping mariners to determine their position in passing along this coast . . .

LONDON—Hardest hit by present economic distress is that venerable landmark—the London taxi-cab driver. Among the 11,000 taxi-cab drivers in London few earn more than $10 a week. In the old days $25 a week was average . . .

difference, it sounds well. You're made, Lily!"

"Thanks to you, Tony—and Nahlman, and Gwin and my mother and my Uncle Eph, and all the others—"

"Nonsense, Lily! People can help
just so much. After that—poof!
You must blow up, unless you have
it—the spark—the flame—"

"I don't feel flaming, Tony. Just tired."

He laughed, kissed her limp fingers. "You will rest!"
She laughed, too. "Of course!"
But she wouldn't tell Tony the truth—that it had been too hard,
that she was too tired, spiritually,
to really care. Success was just life for Robin now, education, advantages. For herself, it was all over.

She had accomplished what she had struggled for. And it wasn't worth while. Well, no turning back . . .
on and on . . .

She sang Butterfly again to a standing room only house. Sang Violetta, in Traviata next, sang with all the frail charm of which Tony dreamed. Sang Mignon three nights later, with vivacity and brilliance, then Butterfly again.

New York was mad over her.
Artists wanted to paint her. Advet-isers wanted her to endorse vanishing cream, toothpaste, cigarettes, and wave lotion . . .

"But she knows a dozen—two dozen roles!" Tony said. "She's just starting! Didn't she troupe for two years with Toscani?"

She had, and she did. Revivals of old Favorites were promised, Lily Lou Lansing to sing Gilda, Lucia, Tosca . . . rumors of a new opera created for her . . . Tony's Balkis.
The youngest prima donna, Lily
Lou Lansing, not yet twenty-one!

Lily Lou was almost twenty-six,
but that's the way with it.

There was a special nurse for Robin now—a French one, for old times' sake, and Tina was to be her personal maid. She kept the same apartment, though she had it alone
now. Maxine Rochon had gone back to Los Angeles. Some sort of job in pictures . . .

Friends? Oh, yes. A star has friends. And crones—Tony, half a dozen real friends. Happy? Is anyone really happy, she asked herself . . .

Sometimes she thought that after all it might be simpler to marry Tony . . .

Still, she didn't love Tony. She didn't want to marry. It was just that Tony wanted her, and he had been so good to her . . .

While she was trying to make up her mind, there came the chance to go to San Francisco, as guest artist with the San Francisco Opera company. Three roles, Mignon, Traviata and Snow Maiden, for the last matinee . . .

She hesitated at first. It would be hard to go back, and there was really no one left to care very much whether she did or not. Dad said that they didn't even know where he was, half the time . . .

There was the matter of Robin,
too. She wouldn't make the long trip without him, and if she took him . . .

Well, what difference did it make?
What could the world do to her now? Even if they did find out, her position was assured, and Robin's, too . . .

She sighed.
"Robin, we're going out west, you'll see your grandpa," she told him. "And your aunts, and your cousins."

Never having met them he was unimpressed. "Will there be Indians? I would like a little Indian to play with!"

"I'm afraid not, darling."
"Then let's not go, mother. Let's go to Coney Island instead. Shall we?"

"I'm afraid it's too late to change our minds. I'm afraid we'll have to go out west," she told him, and she knew that she was sorry. She shouldn't have decided to go.

Madame Lansing, Lily Lou Lansing, youngest Metropolitan star,
guest artist with the San Francisco Opera company, registered at the Fairmont hotel in San Francisco.
Lily Lou read all about it in the papers . . .

She read all the notices about
Lily Lou Lansing, Metropolitan star, with an avid interest that was more than half impersonal. She never felt that it was really she.
She wasn't this glamorous person
she read about. She was just herself, Lily Lou, who used to live in Woodlake, and had a broken heart
once, and a little son now . . .

Still . . . it was she! She had paid all the old Lily Lou's debts with the money Lily Lou's money. She could buy the pretty things she saw in shops. A pink shaded lamp in a decorator's window . . . Her sister
May would love it. All right!
Charge it to Madame Lansing.

A smocked dress for Irene's little girl, charge that, too . . . Too bad she couldn't buy pretty things for Robin, but he was so boyish now,
a tall, sturdy 5-year-old who knew his ABC's and could count, and wanted to go to school like the other boys, please mother!

Did he miss not having had a father? She didn't know. Sometimes she wondered. He asked her so little. She was away from him so much. The French woman, Marie, and the maid, Tina, meant more to him than she did, she thought sometimes. Yet they were such chums. They had such glorious plays together. He did so admire her in her costumes and wigs . . .

She could never look at him without a lump in her throat, without wanting to take him into her arms and hold him tight and cry over him . . . Foolish . . .

May came to see her the day she arrived. May grown a little heavier, a little older. Still working. Still broke. Looking with eyes of envy at the luxurious suite, Lily Lou's lovely gown . . .

"I'd rather stay over in Oakland with you," Lily Lou said truthfully,
"but I couldn't impose on you with Robin, and besides, one has to put up a front—"

"I could endure it," May said dryly. "I could stand a forty dollar
a day suite and a million dollars worth of clothes, to please my public. But I do think it was very silly of you, Lily Lou, as I wrote you at the time. Bess said the same thing Bess said you take an awful chance advertising a child. Of course Robin seems cute, but you don't know how he'll turn out. You don't know what kind of people he came from."

Angry tears stung Lily Lou's eyes. Angry words sprang to her lips. But she choked back the tears and the words. There was nothing she could say. She sat quiet and let her sister tell her that an adopted child was a terrible risk, and if she had to have a pet she would have done better to buy a dog, or a couple of pedigreed cats . . .

Oh, how she longed for some one who would understand . . . someone whom she could talk to . . . her mother . . . And her mother had died, never knowing the truth . . .

The Campaign Opens

Carelessness Causes Blindness of Hundreds of Children Every Year

Study Made By National Society for Prevention of Blindness Shows Great Need for Guarding Little Ones Against Fireworks and Dangerous Toys and Implements.

United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

AN interesting study made recently by the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness reveals that within a short time more than five hundred school children have lost their eyesight because of carelessness.

From seven hundred and fifty to one thousand children every year suffer accidental injury to the eyes, and some of them are actually blinded.
In former years most of these accidents occurred in connection with Fourth of July celebrations.

More than one hundred cities in the United States have prohibited
the sale of toys that may be detrimental to the safety of the eyes of children. There is still innumerable commerce in these toys, however, that permit the sale of many toys and fireworks that menace the common weal.

Danger To Children
To prevent the occurrence of such accidents, it is planned to restrict the use of air rifles, shot guns, blank cartridges, cannons, arrows, rubber-band "fappers" and other dangerous toys. To complete this work of mercy, children must be instructed in the dangers of sharp-pointed objects, such as knives, scissors, sticks, nails, wires and hooks. When these are carelessly handled, serious accidents to the eyes must be expected.

The last Fourth of July recorded a marked decrease in the number of such accidents. Previous to this year, it was estimated that fireworks caused twenty per cent of all eye accidents to children. I am glad to say that fireworks are now more difficult to get, and that we may expect fewer accidents as the public is educated.

The danger to children in handling sharp objects cannot be overemphasized. Children should never be permitted to play with scissors or any other object having a sharp point. A young child does not realize the danger of waving a pointed instrument or stick, and it is really amazing that there are not more accidents.

Another common accident to the eye is caused by flying particles in industrial plants, and employees in certain occupations are protected against this danger by wearing goggles and use of protective screens around machines. Children should be told about this, and warned against exposure to flying pieces of wood, steel or any other hard substance. In carpentry and wood chopping, this menace ought not to be forgotten.

Accidents caused by dirt, cinderor sand thrown or blown into the eyes are dangerous, for infection
may result if the cornea of the eye is scratched either by the particles that has been blown in or by un-skillful efforts to remove it. These cases should receive immediate care by a physician. The average layman should not attempt to remove any foreign object from the eye.
This requires special skill, and the untrained hand may cause harm to the delicate coverings of the eye.

Select Toys Carefully
It is hoped that adequate legislative steps will be taken everywhere to control the sale of any toy or object that is detrimental to the safety of children's eyes. Until then parents should select toys carefully and instruct children in the proper care of their eyes. Much credit is due the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness for their efforts to reduce the number of accidents that threaten blindness in children.

The Daily Horoscope

Saturday, Aug. 20, 1932

According to astrology much interest is likely to be centered on the waterway system of the great lakes. Parts of the state of New York will be ready to accept plans, but some part of the state will raise objections to matters that may effect the hydro-electric power plants. Legislation of that state may raise some strong objections and the government embarrassed.

Fondness of lake travel prevails,
but seasickness is likely to prevail
if restraint is not upon the appetite. The feelings and the emotions of the young folks may not be regulated and the making of new friends haphazard may lead to gossip.

Domestic relations are likely to be upset during the month. People will be sensitive and easily wounded. Those born during the first week in April, October and January, will be particularly sensitive and likely to suffer indignation.
Laying as quietly as possible and abstaining from highly seasoned food will help to keep the blood cool.

The influence of the planets for the late afternoon and evening hours are expected to cause sudden and peculiar changes of feelings, therefore, it will be necessary to restrain the impulses and guard against rebellion of supposed influences. Do

School Building Passes

TIME was when the announcement was made that a new school was to be built in any given neighborhood the residents there of experienced a depression of spirits. The reason was simple enough. The architecture of schools in years gone by was as distinguished as that of a cannery factory. Neighborhoods were anything but improved by such acquisitions.

Happy the change that has come about in school design in later years. With little if any additional cost it has become the practice to engage competent architects with the result that new school buildings are not merely creditable to the community but actually adornments.

As a consequence congratulations are in order, nowadays, when announcement is made that some neighborhood is to be favored with a new schoolhouse. There has come about a comfortable feeling in the public mind such structures will enhance the attractiveness of the neighborhood, become points of interest stimulating to community pride and increase the value of adjacent real estate.

This is as true in rural communities as in the city. Consolidated schools are architecturally attractive and pleasingly landscaped, and where one-room schools are being built they are no longer red shanties.

Much is being accomplished in the beautification of old and originally unbeautiful buildings. Tourists are impressed by the attractively painted schoolhouses, with their well-kept grounds, encountered in many rural sections. The greater part of this work is done by teachers and pupils, which means that it will be only a matter of time when the taxpayers will demand and make possible "little red schoolhouses" that are good to look at and fit to educate children in.

WHY is it that women are so neat and men so sloppy? Lacking only that bias of the female clan which insists on wearing a buxard cap to the grocery store, women never appear outside their own doors in one half of the sloppily, shiftless, good-for-nothing array that a lot of good citizens of the other sex are continually seen in. Why is it?

Perhaps there is no particular virtue in being slicked up all the time, and certainly there is nothing so offensive to the hearty person of masculine gender as the well-oiled young man whose handkerchief protrudes from his coat sleeve, whose vest buttons look as if they had been massaged and manicured an hour before, and who can wear patent leather shoes six months without getting a lot of nicks in them.

But just take the average pillar of the community. Think about his collar for a minute. If he wears one of the tortuous stiff white ones, it will be smeared or else wilted before noon. The soft collar fare little better, and the fellow who wears blue shirt, with collar attached, just looks as if he is on the way to the stable, no matter what part of town you meet him in.

This is all said in spirit of humility. We realize that one man's at bottom as bad as another, and if one looks a little more perk than his neighbor, it is his wife who really deserves the credit. It is nothing that can be reformed, we suppose, and perhaps the women glory in their superiority, and and again even if they could.

But a person can't help wondering sometimes—why it is that a woman looks so neat, and her husband looks so sloppy?

Concerning Holidays

SOME day somebody somewhere will be moved to utter a warning against the unlicensed multiplication of legal holidays. The more holidays we get, the less inclined people are to take them seriously. A few enthusiastically observed would be better for the object intended than many indifferently celebrated or neglected altogether.

New Year long ago lost its significance for most people. Even the public schools usually do not close for Lincoln's birthday or for Columbus day. Comparatively few observe Thanksgiving as a religious festival. Even Memorial day has become more a touring and outing occasion than one for remembering those who saved the Union.

If legal holidays are to be merely occasions for escaping work they might as well be distributed evenly throughout the year. It would simplify matters, for instance, to have a specified day of every month made a legal holiday, taking its name in case from some historic anniversary occurring within the month.

The tendency, of course, is always to multiply, never to decrease, the number of holidays. We may ignore a holiday, but we never legislate it out of existence; and it is small honor to a hero or an historic event for the public generally either to neglect the holiday set aside in commemoration or to turn the celebration into channels foreign to its original purpose.

Who will be first seriously to suggest a revision of holiday schedules in the interests of a harassed and confused mankind.

CHAPTER FIFTY-TWO

"You'll ruin your voice, you darn fool!" Gwin wired her from Long Island.

"No, you won't," Tony said, "not while you keep your voice forward, and don't force it."

And after that it was easy, so easy that it never again seemed hard.

She was singing in the chorus of Madame Butterfly. In the second act, Rosa de Rocca, who was singing the title role in spite of a serious throat affliction, found herself unable to continue. They hustled Lily Lou into the costume, told her she'd have to go on.

She waited, cold and a little weary, in the wings, while the announcement was made. Heard the subdued banging of seats, the little indignant murmur of the disappointed, who were leaving . . .

"They're all leaving, down front," somebody said.

That would have unnerved her a year ago. It did not matter so much now. This was her chance, her opportunity, and the audience was walking out before she started. It would have mattered frightfully, once. But she was used to disappointment now, and there was nobody left but Tony to care. Her mother gone . . . Ken . . . Ken, who was to have come to the end of the world to see her make her debut, gone, God only knew where . . .

Almost from the first she knew that the audience—what was left of it—was with her. She didn't have to throw herself into the part, she WAS Butterfly, waiting, believing, despairing, giving up at last . . .

"Bravo!" someone shouted from the gallery.

"Success! Success!" Tony was on the stage, embracing her almost before the curtain fell.

Tina brought Lily Lou the morning papers, while she was still in bed. She turned to the drama pages, saw the headlines . . . Turned away, a little sick with the excitement. After five years . . . after she had almost given up . . . Success . . .

Young Robin, glowing and happy, after his early morning play in the park, opened the door a crack, came running to the bed to throw his arms around her and ask to play Indian—"Just a minute, only a minute. I promised Tina I wouldn't play, only a minute with you!"

She pressed his cold cheek against hers, hugged him until he squirmed—

"Le's play, mother-er—Le's play!"

So she submitted to being scalped, and they hunted for scouts under the pillow. After that Tina led him away, and she turned once more to the papers.

But she knew what was in them. She'd known ever since last night, almost from the moment that she made her first entrance she knew.

"Lily Lou Lansing rises from the night clubs, to sing the second act of Butterfly . . . a romantic figure, young, slim and beautiful, possessed of a superb soprano voice that soars effortlessly into the higher reaches . . ."

The telephone began to ring. Reporters came. Strange people to congratulate her. Strange agents with contracts.

"A wonderful piece of luck," Tony said. "Dramatic, do you see? In the midst of a dull season, the new prima donna—out of the night clubs! Of course you're no more out of the night clubs than I'm out of the Royal Navy, but it makes no anniversary occurring within the month.

The tendency, of course, is always to multiply, never to decrease, the number of holidays. We may ignore a holiday, but we never legislate it out of existence; and it is small honor to a hero or an historic event for the public generally either to neglect the holiday set aside in commemoration or to turn the celebration into channels foreign to its original purpose.

difference, it sounds well. You're made, Lily!"

"Thanks to you, Tony—and Nahlman, and Gwin and my mother and my Uncle Eph, and all the others—"

"Nonsense, Lily! People can help just so much. After that—poof! You must blow up, unless you have it—the spark—the flame—"

"I don't feel flaming, Tony. Just tired."

He laughed, kissed her limp fingers. "You will rest!"

She laughed, too. "Of course!" But she wouldn't rest. The truth—that it had been too hard, that she was too tired, spiritually, to really care. Success was just life for Robin now, education, advantages. For herself, it was all over. She had accomplished what she had struggled for. And it wasn't worth while. Well, no turning back . . . on and on . . .

She sang Butterfly again to a standing room only house. Sang Violetta, in Traviata next, sang it with all the frail charm of which Tony dreamed. Sang Mignon three nights later, with vivacity and brilliance, then Butterfly again.

New York was mad over her. Artists wanted her to endorse vanishing cream, toothpaste, cigarettes, and wave lotion.

"But she knows a dozen—two dozen roles!" Tony said. "She's just starting! Didn't she troupe for two years with Toscani?"

She had, and she did. Revivals of old Favorites were promised, Lily Lou Lansing to sing Gilda, Lucia, Tosca . . . rumors of a new opera created for her . . . Tony's Balkis.

The youngest prima donna, Lily Lou Lansing, not yet twenty-one! Lily Lou was almost twenty-six, but that's the way with it.

There was a special nurse for Robin now—a French one, for old times' sake, and Tina was to be her apurmal maid. She kept the same apartment, though she had it alone now. Maxine Rochon had gone back to Los Angeles. Some sort of job in pictures.

Friends? Oh, yes. A star has friends, and cronies—Tony, half a dozen real friends, happy? Is anyone really happy, she asked herself.

Sometimes she thought that after all it might be simpler to marry Tony.

Still, she didn't love Tony. She didn't want to marry. It was just that Tony wanted her, and he had been so good to her.

While she was trying to make up her mind, there came the chance to go to San Francisco, as guest artist with the San Francisco Opera company. Three roles, Mignon, Traviata, and Snow Maiden, for the last matinee.

She hesitated at first. It would be hard to go back, and there was really no one left to care very much whether she did or not. Dad . . . but he never wrote . . . May said that they didn't even know where he was, half the time.

There was the matter of Robin, too. She wouldn't make the long trip without him, and if she took him, Well, what difference did it make? What could the world do to her now? Even if they did find out, her position was assured, and Robin's, too.

She sighed.

"Robin, we're going out west, you'll see your grandpa," she told him. "And your aunts, and your cousins."

Never having met them he was unimpressed. "Will there be Indians? I would like a little Indian to play with!"

Madame Lansing, Lily Lou Lansing, youngest Metropolitan star, guest artist with the San Francisco Opera company, registered at the Fairmont hotel in San Francisco.

Lily Lou read all about it in the papers.

She read all the notices about Lily Lou Lansing, Metropolitan star, with an avid interest that was more than half impersonal. She never felt that it was really she. She wasn't this glamorous person she read about. She was just her Woodlake, and had a broken heart once, and a little son now.

Still . . . it was she! She had paid all the old Lily Lou's debts with the new Lily Lou's money. She could buy the pretty things she saw in shops. A pink shaded lamp in a decorator's window . . . Her sister May would love it. All right! Charge it to Madame Lansing . . .

A smoked dress for Irene's little girl, charge that, too . . . Too bad she couldn't buy pretty things for Robin, but he was so boyish now, a tall, sturdy 5-year-old who knew his ABC's and could count, and wanted to go to school like the other boys, please mother-er!

Did he miss not having had a father? She didn't know. Sometimes she wondered. He asked her so little. She was away from him so much. The French woman, Marie, and the maid, Tina, meant more to him than she did, she thought sometimes. Yet they were such chums. They had such glorious plays together. He did so admire her in her costumes and wigs.

She could never look at him without a lump in her throat, without wanting to take him into her arms and hold him tight and cry over him . . . Foolish . . .

May came to see her the day she arrived. May grown a little heavier, a little older. Still working. Still broke. Looking with eyes of envy at the luxurious suite, Lily Lou's lovely gowns.

"I'd rather stay over in Oakland with you," Lily Lou said truthfully, "but I couldn't impose on you with Robin, and besides, one has to put up a front—"

"I could endure it," May said dryly. "I could stand a forty dollar day suite and a million dollars worth of clothes, to please my public. But I do think it was very silly of you, Lily Lou, as I wrote you at the time. Bess said the same thing. Bess said you take an awful chance adopting a child. Of course Robin seems cute, but you don't know how he'll turn out. You don't know what kind of people he came from."

Angry tears stung Lily Lou's eyes. Angry words sprung to her lips. But she choked back the tears and the words. There was nothing she could say. She sat quiet and let her sister tell her that an adopted child was a terrible risk, and if she had to have a pet she would have done better to buy a dog, or a couple of pedigreed cats.

Oh, how she longed for some one who would understand . . . someone whom she could talk to . . . her mother . . . And her mother had died, never knowing the truth . . .

Carelessness Causes Blindness of Hundreds of Children Every Year

Study Made By National Society for Prevention of Blindness Shows Great Need for Guarding Little Ones Against Fireworks and Dangerous Toys and Implements.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

AN interesting study made recently by the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness reveals that within a short time more than five hundred school children have lost their eyesight because of carelessness in handling dangerous toys and implements.

From seven hundred and fifty to one thousand children every year suffer accidental injury to the eyes, and some of them are actually blinded. In former years most of these accidents occurred in connection with Fourth of July celebrations. More than one hundred cities in the United States have prohibited the sale of toys that may be detrimental to the safety of the eyes of children. There are still innumerable communities, I am sorry to say, that permit the sale of many toys and fireworks that menace the common welfare.

Danger To Children

To prevent the occurrence of such accidents, it is planned to restrict the use of air rifles, shot guns, blank cartridges, cannons, arrows, rubber-band "flippers" and other dangerous toys. To complete this work of mercy, children must be instructed in the dangers of sharp-pointed objects, such as knives, scissors, sticks, nails, wires and hooks. When these are carelessly handled, serious damage to the eyes must be expected.

The last Fourth of July recorded a marked decrease in the number of such accidents. Previous to this year, it was estimated that fireworks caused twenty per cent of all eye accidents to children. I am glad to say that fireworks are now more difficult to get, and that we may expect fewer accidents as the public is educated.

The danger to children in handling sharp objects cannot be over-emphasized. Children should never be permitted to play with scissors or any other object having a sharp point. A young child does not realize the danger of waving a pointed instrument or stick, and it is really amazing that there are not more accidents.

Another common accident to the eye is traced to flying particles in industrial plants, and employees in certain occupations are protected against this danger by wearing goggles and use of protective screens around machines. Children should be told about this, and warned against exposure to flying pieces of wood, steel or any other hard substance. In carpentry and wood-chopping, this menace ought not to be forgotten.

Accidents caused by dirt, cinders or sand thrown or blown into the eyes are dangerous, for infection may result. The corners of the eye are scratched, either by the particle that has been blown in or by unskillful efforts to remove it. These cases should receive immediate care by a physician. The average layman should not attempt to remove any foreign object from the eye. This requires special skill, and the untrained hand may cause harm to the delicate coverings of the eye.

Select Toys Carefully

It is hoped that adequate legislative steps will be taken everywhere to control the sale of any toy or object that is detrimental to the safety of children's eyes. Until then parents should select toys carefully, and instruct children in the proper care of their eyes. Much credit is due the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness for their efforts to reduce the number of accidents that threaten blindness in children.

The Daily Horoscope

According to astrology much interest is likely to be centered on the waterway system of the great lakes. Parts of the state of New York will be ready to accept plans, but some part of the state will raise objections to matters that may effect the hydro-electric power plants. Legislation of that state may raise some strong objections and the government embarrassed.

Fondness of lake travel prevails, but seasickness is likely to prevail if restraint is not upon the appetite. The feelings and the emotions of the young folks may not be regulated and the making of new friends haphazard may lead to gossip.

Domestic relations are likely to be upset during the month. People will be sensitive and easily wounded. Those born during the first week in April, October and January, will be particularly sensitive and likely to suffer indisposition. Living as quietly as possible and abstaining from highly seasoned food will help to keep the blood cool.

The influence of the planets for the late afternoon and evening hours are expected to cause sudden and peculiar changes of feelings, therefore, it will be necessary to restrain the impulses and guard against rebellion of supposed limitations. Do not confide in strangers, nor make up with chance acquaintances. People are likely to make promises, but fail to keep them. The exercise of great caution in the handling of electrical apparatus and conveyances should be used. Reckless driving, short cuts and a desire for adventurous pursuits will lead to accidents. If the vibrations are used for constructive purposes then new ideas and methods may be used for purposes of investigation.

Do not experiment with electricity, nor make repairs on radios, autos or aeroplanes at any time during today.

The sway today shows unexpected developments in government circles which require tactful handling. Some radical changes will be expanded that will be favored.

AT THE GRAND

Although Charlotte Henry, who has the leading feminine romantic role in "Lena Rivers," now playing at the Grand Theatre is but 17 years old, Tiffany Production executives believe they have an actress who will measure up to standards established for seasoned players.

Miss Henry has distinguished herself on both the stage and silver screen during the past three years despite her extreme youth in such productions as "Courage" both the stage and motion picture version, and "Huckleberry Finn" with Junior Durkin.

Her poise and grasp of emotional scenes in "Lena Rivers" established her as a capable and talented actress.

With Miss Henry in the cast of "Lena Rivers," are Morgan Gallo-way, Beryl Mercer, James Kirkwood, Joyce Compton, Betty Blythe John St. Polis; directed by Paul Rosen.

AT THE GRAND

A man's valiant efforts against the odds to prove himself innocent of a murder of which he is unjustly accused provide the dramatic conflict of "The Two Gun Caballero," a new mystery feature coming Saturday to the Grand Theatre.

"The Two Gun Caballero" is a fast moving story enacted by a strong cast of seasoned stage and screen favorites, headed by Robert Frazer, Consuelo Dawn, Pat Harman, little Bobby Nelson, Diane Esmonde and Al Ferguson.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Jean Harlow, of the famed platinum-blond tresses, offers a surprise to all in her latest screen role, as the heroine of "Red Headed Woman," opening Sunday at the Cliftona Theatre.

In order to play the title-role in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's finalization of the sensational Katharine Brush best-seller, Miss Harlow was required to change her hair to a flaming red, a change which is reported to make quite a difference in her appearance and personality.

Vivid Character Study

"Red Headed Woman" presents a vivid character study of a woman who stops at nothing to gain

Planetary aspects are favorable for the morning hours and invite attention to most affairs and for business dealings with those in high position. The aspect conduces to a pleasant frame of mind and tends to give ambition, loyalty and esteem, indicating a splendid time to attend to important affairs.

The stars say you may now lay your plans before those who are interested, ask favors, and seek advice. Some star in the movies, baseball favorite, or notable educator will come into publicity for some striking achievement.

Those who are very progressive and desire to lead will find opportunities, if they wish to take advantage of them. Those in high office and heads of their department's are particularly favored by today's aspects.

The angles of the planets toward the noon hour predispose to melancholy, discontent and apprehension. One may possess much earnestness this morning, but his plans may fail. Unlooked for rebuffs and disapproval from older people, especially women, will hamper the young people. The judgment of elderly people will be inclined to be warped during this aspect, therefore, ask no favors of them, make no changes; it will pay to wait until the later hours of the day. Elder women holding positions of responsibility will feel discouraged and have some fault with their system of doing things.

The indications of the aspects for the afternoon and evening hours are splendid for visiting hospitals, as Jupiter, the "joy giver" will enable visitors to spread cheer and good humor. This is a good time to make others happy.

Public institutions may benefit for the balance of the month through endowments, public subscriptions and welfare societies.

The vocation of children born on this day should be professional, there is a strong love of ceremony and distinction.

Jean Baptiste Greuze, the French painter was born on this date, 1725; also William IV, King of England, 1765.

Courtesy is one of the cheapest exercises of virtue. He doeth much that doeth a thing well. Folly is the poverty of the mind. Judge no man until you have stood in his place. Little minds are wounded by little things. in connection with the patriotic exercises celebrating the establishment of the Republic of China. Another project sponsored by the committee will be open to high school pupils and will consist of writing goodwill messages to the children of other lands. Two will be selected for broadcasting and publication in this country and abroad on World Goodwill Day, May 18, 1933. All the messages will be bound together in volumes and sent to the League of Nations.

Book Review

CHARLES WESLEY, by Wise-man, The Abington Press, is a critical and comprehensive biography of Charles Wesley, evangelist and poet, including his relation to other writers of his time.

Sermon Sentences

Courtesy is one of the cheapest exercises of virtue. He doeth much that doeth a thing well. Folly is the poverty of the mind. Judge no man until you have stood in his place. Little minds are wounded by little things. The men whom I have always seen succeed best in life have been cheerful and hopeful men, who went about their business with a smile on the faces and took the changes and chances of this mortal life like mar, facing rough and smooth alike, as it came.—Kingsley.

NEW HOLLAND

PARISH BAND TO PLAY HERE

Boost Fair of Chillicothe Greater Parish To Be Held In Ross-Co.

The Chillicothe Larger M. E. Parish band under the direction of Mrs. Will Huff will come to Circleville sometime Sunday and give a concert as a means of boosting interest in the Parish Fair to be held at the Ross-Co. Fair grounds, Eastern-ave., Chillicothe, Aug. 25, 26 and 27.

Rev. H. H. Abels, pastor of the M. E. church at Richmond Dale is director general of the fair event and Rev. "Doc" Waddell of Columbus, is chaplain of the shows and show people.

Rev. Waddell and Dolly the Doll Lady, principal features at the fair will be at the Kiwanis meeting Monday night and also will be present at the Rotary club meeting next Thursday.

There will be free acts, rides (including the largest ferris wheel in the state), shows, concessions, a real bang-up midway, but all clean and meritorious.

The general committee for the committee includes Rev. H. H. Abels, Mrs. James Tootle, Mrs. Mandane Lutz, Rev. Paul Niswander, H. E. Townsend, Rev. Doc Waddell, Harry Laroy, Harry Gunlock, Mrs. Will Huff, Arthur Crago and Ralph McCalla.

The church committee heads are: Dwight Rector, Mt. Pleasant; Georgia Fry, Richmond Dale; Mrs. Henry Jones, Concord; Seney West, Hopetown; Gladys Rader, Emmett Chapel; Elizabeth Immell, Crouse; Robert Woltz, Andersonville; Mrs. Jacob Lapp, Pleasant Valley; Mrs. Earl Graves, Massieville; Mrs. Frank Ward, Bishop Hill; Rev. C. F. English, Denver; Mrs. Emma Cline, Cline Chapel; Merrill Oyer, Foster Chapel; W. G. Orr, Mt. Carmel; Koyt Young, Londonderry; Mrs. Lucy Lutz, Spring Bank and Mrs. Elizabeth Landrum of Omega.

Some people get all run down dodging duties.

ROOSEVELT

eliminated when the committee overwhelmingly rejected the proposal of A. L. Caris of Ravenna, to place the convention on record favoring repeal of the Crabbe and Miller acts, Ohio prohibition laws.

ISSUES OUTLINED

Besides committing the state party to the national platform "in its entirety," thus advocating repeal of the 18th amendment and modification of the Volstead act, the state platform, as tentatively adopted, makes the following declarations:

1. The paramount issue of this state campaign is economy in government.

2. Under the able direction of Governor White, total state operating expenditures were reduced $9,646,000 in his first year in comparison with the last year of his predecessor.

3. Pledges revision of present Ohio tax laws "to cure inequitable provisions."

4. Promises legislation to assist Ohio communities to borrow federal funds for elimination of slums.

5. Promises speedy ratification by this state of the constitutional amendment abolishing lame-duck sessions of Congress.

6. Calls for the election of Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt for president, Speaker John N. Garner for vice president, Robert J. Bulkley as U. S. senator, and all other Democratic candidates.

HOOVER ATTACHED

Starting the applause which is expected to reach its climax when Former Governor James M. Cox, presidential nominee in 1920, introduces Roosevelt this afternoon, Bulkley last night vigorously assailed President Hoover's prohibition stand and heaped blame for industrial conditions on the White House.

"There is so much of indecision and failure about the present administration," he charged, "that it ought to be consigned to political destruction."

As for President Hoover's condemnation of the saloon in his recent acceptance speech, he declared that "it is clear that this whole presidential pronouncement is inconsistent with itself, a partisan Republican attempt to face both ways on the prohibition question in order to keep both wets and dries in line to vote the Republican ticket."

Regarding Republican predictions about prosperity's return, Bulkley said: "The captain whose bearings are so badly at fault cannot steer a consistent course nor can a leader so misinform develop a definite strategy."

GOVERNOR PRAISED

Bulkley's speech also resonated with praise for Governor White. He said the other state governments of the country have followed Governor White's lead in cutting expenditures, White foresaw the financial catastrophe in government before the nation, he declared.

"The people of Ohio do not yet fully realize," he said, "the debt they owe to George White. The daily press is now filled with accounts of economy measures in all the subdivisions of the state. By precept and example, he has shown the way."

Reiterating past pledges, Governor White, in an address following Bulkley, avoided prohibition except to say "I stand upon and endorse our national and state platforms."

Unless building and loan associations take steps to extend relief to depositors by borrowing money from the new home loan banks, they "will compel the state to do so," he said.

Prior to the opening of the convention the state executive committee lived up to predictions and chose Charles Sawyer of Cincinnati as nominee for lieutenant governor to succeed Lieut. Gov. William G. Pickrel of Dayton, who withdrew.

legally announced to Hamilton police yesterday admitting she fired two shots at Mrs. Gumsaulle when the two had a dispute over whether to throw out tomatoes which had been canned.

The two shots were fired, she said, according to police after Mrs. Gumsaulle attacked her with a razor.

Investigators found the freshly-dug mound on the Gumsaulle farm after Mrs. Cummer's story became incoherent and she was unable to tell more about the fight.

Later, let to the grave, she said, "Mrs. Gumsaulle dug the grave for me and I just buried her in it. She started the quarrel by hitting me over the head with a bucket."

The body of Mrs. Gumsaulle, when dug from the grave, was found to have been shot through the heart Mrs. Cummer displayed a wound over the right eye an evidence of the struggle.

The quarrel over tomatoes started a week ago and flamed up again yesterday about 8 a. m. after Guy Gumsaulle, husband of the dead woman, left home for the day. Mrs. Cummer was said to have related to police.

Mrs. Cummer had worked for the Gumsaulle family for three years.

BAY RUM ADDICT
SENT FROM TOWN

Charles James, who gave his address as Charles James, who gave his residence as anywhere and occupation, a bum, was ordered to leave town as quickly as possible by Mayor B. T. Hedges, Saturday, following his arrest at 3:45 p. m. Friday by L. E. Miller, service director.

Miller found James allegedly drunk in a gutter near the John Phillips restaurant, W. Main-st. A partly-filled bottle of bay rum was found in James' pocket.

He had purchased the bottle of bay rum, 60 percent alcohol, at a local store for 10 cents, James told police.

KIRWIN TO TALK

Pat J. Kirwin, Herald reporter, will address the Kiwanis club Monday evening at Hanley's tea room when he will tell of his trip to the Olympic games at Los Angeles and will describe some of the interesting places included in his itinerary.

Aviation Classic

which will make stops at Martins Ferry and Akron before hitting Cleveland.

5.—The Sohio Mystery race, the route for which will not be known until the pilots hop from one Ohio airport to another in regular "treasure hunt" fashion.

MANY MANEUVERS

And besides these, there will be tactical maneuvers of army and navy flyers that are expected to extend in all directions within a 50-mile radius of this city.

But before the above mentioned features are held, there should be plenty of excitement among watchful Ohioans in a "hare and hound" race over the state next week, as sort of a curtain raiser to the air races program.

The "hares" in this modern spectacle will be two balloons, carrying members of the Cleveland and Akron Balloon Club. The "hounds" will be Ohio citizens, in any section of the state.

According to the way this "hound and hare" race will function, the first "hound" to reach the side of either "hare" after it lands, will get a set of tickets for the air races program. At the same time the "hare" that sails the greatest distance from Cleveland will receive the National Air Race Trophy.

Owing to the fact that the wind may be blowing in any or all directions on the day of the race, it will be impossible to predict just where the balloons might land. If they head downstate, however, they are almost certain to go past the central section and may reach the vicinity of the Ohio river.

All Ohio, according to air race officials, is taking a hand in the staging of the 1933 classic. Cincinnati, Akron and Martins Ferry will serve as stopping-off places, but a score of other Ohio communities will play featured roles in the great air pageant.

CITIES HAVE DAYS

Several Ohio cities have been favored by getting certain days on the program named in their honor. For example, the first day of the meet will be known as "Cincinnati Day," Wednesday, Aug. 31, will be "Mansfield Day" and "Ashtabula Day." Thursday will be "Columbus and Sandusky Day" and the last day of the program, Aug. 5, will be "Akron Day."

Luke's all mysteries, the Sohio Mystery race is getting its share of the interest in the air races program. The pilots entering the event will have no more idea of where they will have to fly, than a knight of the road knows where he will get his next meal.

When they line up at the post for the start of the race, each pilot will be told the first stop, which may be anywhere from Conneaut to Cincinnati. When they land at the first point, they will learn of the second stopping place, and so on, all through the day. The race will end here, of course, if all the pilots are not lost on the way.

Ohioans who hope to see the Bendix flyers without attending the races at Cleveland, will have to be sharp-eyed individuals, or the planes will pass unnoticed.

When competitors of this event reach Ohio they will be traveling at speeds averaging from 250 to 300 miles, and it will take a quick eye to follow them as long as they are in sight.

A rough sea is the only power on earth that can make a woman in different to her personal appearance.

eliminated when the committee overwhelmingly rejected the proposal of A. L. Caris of Ravenna, to place the convention on record favoring repeal of the Crabbe and Miller acts, Ohio prohibition laws.

ISSUES OUTLINED

Besides committing the state party to the national platform "in its entirety," thus advocating repeal of the 18th amendment and modification of the Volstead act, the state platform, as tentatively adopted, makes the following declarations:

1. The paramount issue of this state campaign is economy in government.
2. Under the able direction of Governor White, total state operating expenditures were reduced $9,646,000 in his first year in comparison with the last year of his predecessor.
3. Pledges revision of present Ohio tax laws "to cure inequitable provisions."
4. Promises legislation to assist Ohio communities to borrow federal funds for elimination of slums.
5. Promises speedy ratification by this state of the constitutional amendment abolishing lame-duck sessions of Congress.
6. Calls for the election of Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt for president, Speaker John N. Garner for vice president, Robert J. Bulkley as U. S. senator, and all other Democratic candidates.

HOOVER ATTACHED

Starting the applause which is expected to reach its climax when Former Governor James M. Cox, presidential nominee in 1920, introduces Roosevelt this afternoon, Bulkley last night vigorously assailed President Hoover's prohibition stand and heaped blame for industrial conditions on the White House.

"There is so much of indecision and failure about the present administration," he charged, "that it ought to be consigned to political destruction."

As for President Hoover's condemnation of the saloon in his recent acceptance speech, he declared that "it is clear that this whole presidential pronouncement is inconsistent with itself, a partisan Republican attempt to face both ways on the prohibition question in order to keep both wets and dries in line to vote the Republican ticket."

Each new attack on the Republican administration was cheered enthusiastically by the big crowd of visiting Democrats that filled Columbus Auditorium for the address.

Regarding Republican predictions about prosperity's return, Bulkley said: "The captain whose bearings are so badly at fault cannot steer a consistent course nor can a leader so misinformed develop a definite strategy."

GOVERNOR PRAISED

Bulkley's speech also resounded with praise for Governor White. He said the other state governments of the country have followed Governor White's lead in cutting expenditures, White foresaw the financial catastrophe in government before the nation, he declared.

"The people of Ohio do not yet fully realize," he said, "the debt they owe to George White. The daily press is now filled with accounts of economy measures in all the subdivisions of the state. By precept and example, he has shown the way."

Reiterating past pledges, Governor White, in an address following Bulkley, avoided prohibition except to say "I stand upon and in-dorse our national and state platforms."

Unless building and loan associations take steps to extend relief to depositors by borrowing money from the new home loan banks, they "will compel the state to do so," he said.

Prior to the opening of the convention the state executive committee lived up to predictions and chose Charles Sawyer of Cincinnati as nominee for lieutenant governor to succeed Lieut. Gov. William G. Pickrel of Dayton, who withdrew.

MURDER ENDS

legally announced to Hamilton police yesterday admitting she fired two shots at Mrs. Gunsaulie when the two had a dispute over whether to throw out tomatoes which had been canned.

The two shots were fired, she said, according to police after Mrs. Gunsaulie attacked her with a razor.

Investigators found the freshly-dug mound on the Gunsaulie farm after Mrs. Cummer's story became incoherent and she was unable to tell more about the fight.

Later, let to the grave, she said: "Mrs. Gunsaulie dug the grave for me and I just buried her in it. She started the quarrel by hitting me over the head with a bucket."

The body of Mrs. Gunsaulie, when dug from the grave, was found to have been shot through the heart. Mrs. Cummer displayed a wound over the right eye an evidence of the struggle.

The quarrel over tomatoes started a week ago and flamed up again yesterday about 8 a. m. after Guy Gunsaulie, husband of the dead woman, left home for the day. Mrs. Cummer was said to have related to police.

Mrs. Cummer had worked for the Gunsaulie family for three years.

BAY RUM ADDICT SENT FROM TOWN

Charles James, who gave his address as anywhere and occupation, a bum, was ordered to leave town as quickly as possible by Mayor B. T. Hedges, Saturday, following his arrest at 3:45 p. m., Friday by L. E. Miller, service director.

Miller found James allegedly drunk in a gutter near the John Phillips restaurant, W. Main-st. A partly-filled bottle of bay rum was found in James' pocket.

He had purchased the bottle of bay rum, 60 percent alcohol, at a local store for 10 cents, James told police.

Aviation Classic

which will make stops at Martins Ferry and Akron before hitting Cleveland.

5—The Sohio Mystery race, the route for which will not be known until the pilots hop from one Ohio airport to another in regular "treasure hunt" fashion.

MANY MANEUVERS

And besides these, there will be tactical maneuvers of army and navy flyers that are expected to extend in all directions within a 50-mile radius of this city.

But before the above mentioned features are held, there should be plenty of excitement among watchful Ohionians in a "hare and hound" race over the state next week, as sort of a curtain raiser to the air races program.

The "hares" in this modern spectacle will be two balloons, carrying members of the Cleveland and Akron Balloon Club. The "hounds" will be Ohio citizens, in any section of the state.

According to the way this "hound and hare" race will function, the first "hound" to reach the side of either "hare" after it lands, will get a set of tickets for the air races program. At the same time the "hare" that sails the greatest distance from Cleveland will receive the National Air Race Trophy.

Owing to the fact that the wind may be blowing in any or all directions on the day of the race, it will be impossible to predict just where the balloons might land. If they head downstate, however, they are almost certain to go past the central section and may reach the vicinity of the Ohio river.

All Ohio, according to air race officials, is taking a hand in the staging of the 1932 classic. Cincinnati, Akron and Martins Ferry will serve as stopping-off places, but a score of other Ohio communities will play featured roles in the great air pageant.

CITIES HAVE DAYS

Several Ohio cities have been favored by getting certain days on the program named in their honor. For example, the first day of the meet will be known as "Cincinnati Day." Wednesday, Aug. 31, will be "Mansfield Day" and "Ashtabula Day," Thursday will be "Columbus and Sandusky Day" and the last day of the program, Aug. 5, will be "Akron Day."

Like all mysteries, the Sohio Mystery race is getting its share of the interest in the air races program. The pilots entering the event will have no more idea of where they will have to fly, than a knight of the road knows where he will get his next meal.

When they line up at the post for the start of the race, each pilot will be told the first stop, which may be anywhere from Conneaut to Cincinnati. When they land at the first point, they will learn of the second stopping place, and so on, all through the day. The race will end here, of course, if all the pilots are not lost on the way.

Ohionians who hope to see the Bendix flyers without attending the races at Cleveland, will have to be sharp-eyed individuals, or the planes will pass unnoticed.

When competitors of this event reach Ohio they will be traveling at speeds averaging from 250 to 300 miles, and it will take a quick eye to follow them as long as they are in sight.

A rough sea is the only power on earth that can make a woman indifferent to her personal appearance.
